

Green light for Kingston intersection

A new set of traffic lights will be installed at the intersection of Beach Road and Church Street, Kingston, following a recommendation from the Black Spot Consultative Panel in Tasmania.

The panel is comprised of local stakeholders and ensures projects meet the needs of local drivers.

"I'm pleased to welcome the installation of traffic lights at the intersection of Beach Road and Church Street in Kingston," Kingborough Mayor Paula Wriedt said.

"This intersection is very busy, with 19 accidents reported over the last five years.

"Along with Council's $250,000, the Federal Government will invest $500,000 from the Black Spot Program to install the lights."

The new set of traffic lights will complement the growing usage of this thoroughfare by reducing the risk of collision, especially at peak times.

"Kingston is one of the fastest growing communities in Tasmania, which is why it's important we ensure our road infrastructure is kept up to date so they're safe and fit-for-purpose," Assistant Minister for Infrastructure and Transport and Senator for Tasmania Carol Brown said.

"From all levels of government and across our community, road safety is a shared responsibility, and we all have our part to play to keep each other safe."

Federal member for Franklin Julie Collins welcomed the road safety upgrades.

"I am proud to be part of a government that is delivering local, high-priority safety improvements and encourage anyone in the Franklin electorate and across Tasmania to nominate sites in future funding rounds," she said.

Black Spot Program funding will increase from $110 million per year to $150 million as of July 1.

Nominations for Black Spot locations can be made on their website.

Kingborough road safety

Road Safety Week ran from Sunday, May 5 to Sunday, May 12, with a range of initiatives in the Kingborough region highlighting the importance of promoting safe driving.

Kingston Inspector Colin Riley and Kingborough Mayor Paula Wriedt visited a road safety blitz site in Kingston on May 6.

The road safety team were set up on Redwood Road checking vehicles were registered, ensuring drivers were licensed, their vehicles were roadworthy and that they were being driven appropriately.

Council also lit up the Civic Centre in yellow, in honour of Road Safety Week's nationally recognised yellow ribbon symbol.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Bus-less terminal

Dear Editor,

Perhaps you have wondered, like me, why there are never any buses in the bus terminal located at the top of Channel Highway adjacent to the roundabout.

Well apparently it is due to the fact that buses cannot turn into the terminal. This reminds me of the episode of Yes Minister where there is a 500-bed hospital fully equipped and fully staffed but with no patients.

Bruny Island driving choices

Kingston Inspector Colin Riley said Road Safety Week provides a timely reminder for all road users, including Bruny Island visitors, to be especially aware of their driving choices.

Inspector Riley highlighted Bruny Island as an example as recent patrols on the island have detected both drug and drink drivers in the area, including a reading of 0.187 and another of 0.12, noting the legal limit for these drivers is 0.05.

Another detection was a driver who was found speeding in the middle of the day and subsequently returned a high range breath alcohol reading.

Both speed and alcohol are identified as factors contributing to fatalities on our roads.

"Disappointingly some people continue to make poor driving choices," Inspector Riley said.

Tasmania Police are active on Bruny Island, conducting high visibility patrols with a particular focus on the high-risk areas of:

- Speeding
- Use of seatbelts
- Alcohol and drug driving
- Mobile phone use and inattention

"National Road Safety Week is about further promoting road safety awareness in the community and encouraging discussion about how we can make our roads safer and reduce road trauma," said the Chair of the Road Safety Advisory Council Scott Tilyard.

"This week and every week, we are asking all Tasmanians to drive so others survive.

"We continue to work towards our vision of zero deaths and serious injuries, but we are not on track to get there."

There have been eight fatalities and 114 serious injuries on Tasmanian roads so far this year.

"Drivers are reminded to make the right choices every single time they drive, no matter the time of day or distance being travelled," Inspector Riley said.

Kingston Inspector Colin Riley and Kingborough Mayor Paula Wriedt attended a road safety blitz in Kingston for Road Safety Week. Inspector Riley urges drivers to make the right choices every single time they drive. He discussed Bruny Island as a local example where patrols have revealed a disappointing number of drug and drink drivers in the area. (PS)

Street steps back

Franklin MP and Blackmans Bay resident Minister Nic Street has announced he will be taking a temporary break from his ministerial responsibilities.

"As many would know, I have had challenges with my mental health for a number of years," Mr Street said.

"In recent weeks I have increasingly struggled and am currently working on my recovery with all the appropriate supports.

"I will be taking a period of leave to ensure I have the time and space to recover.

"It is my intention to return to my ministerial duties in the coming weeks.

"During my time in politics, I have not shied away from talking about mental health issues openly and honestly to help break down the stigma attached to them.

"I have chosen to use my situation as an opportunity to be upfront with Tasmanians, and normalise this issue, just like any other health issue.

"In my absence, Deputy Premier Michael Ferguson will be acting Minister for Finance, Minister Roger Jaensch will be acting Minister for Local Government and Minister Nick Duigan will be acting Minister for Sport and Events."

The Department of State Growth has an interactive map where community members can provide feedback until Sunday, May 26. At the time of print 145 contributions had been made.

Two consultation zones have been devised by the Department of State Growth. One is in Margate starting from the Channel Highway and Sandfly Road intersection and ending at the Channel Highway and Parish Lane intersection. The other zone in Snug starts from Jarvis Road and ends at Old Station Road.

Feedback in the Snug zone included reducing the speed limit to 50km/hr, pedestrian crossings that double as speed humps and a roundabout at the northern end. Feedback in the Margate zone included several suggestions for a permanent crossing outside Margate Primary School, a bike stand near the post office and a roundabout at the Van Morey Road and Channel Highway junction.

Local response to parenting survey

The Triple P Positive Parenting Program conducted a national parenting survey, with over 8000 parents and carers responding.

The Kingborough Chronicle reached out to Blackmans

Bay resident and foster carer of two, Rebecca Weicks, to see how the results matched up to her personal experience.

"The results expose what's really going on for families in Australia right now, set against a backdrop of compounding financial pressure, an increase in kids' mental health and wellbeing concerns and the growing issue of school refusal," Triple P founder and clinical psychologist Professor Matt Sanders said.

The survey revealed almost nine out of 10 parents have had to cut back on spending because of the cost-of-living pressures, with over half cutting back on grocery purchases and 81 per cent cutting back on eating out and takeaway.

"I agree," Rebecca said.

"It is getting difficult to afford basic things with prices increasing all the time.

"I am always shocked at the cost of a simple grocery shop for a few items."

Professor Sanders said "This is where we can clearly see the impact this pressure can have on family relationships, with 42 per cent of parents reporting the rising cost of living has impacted their ability to be a calm, loving partner or parent".

Rebecca disagreed.

"Money has always been tight for me, so I do not think this is adding more pressure," she said.

"I think that for the majority of Australians, they are now realising what it is like for the millions who have to live off Centrelink benefits like pensioners, single parents and people looking for work."

The survey also revealed that almost half of all parents are dissatisfied with the amount of time they spend on self-care activities, such as physical exercise, socialising or doing an activity they enjoy.

"I rarely get time to myself, and I do miss it," Rebecca agreed.

"But that is what the reality of being a parent is."

"What's important is parents know they are not alone in these struggles, that looking after themselves is critical, and it's okay to seek help and support," said Professor Sanders.

Water competes for Trans-Tasman

TasWater's Fern Tree water treatment plant will be competing with New Zealand for the IXOM Trans-Tasman Water Taste Test.

All municipal water suppliers in New Zealand have been invited to submit a sample of their finest drop to the Water Industry Operations Group of New Zealand (WIOG).

The award for New Zealand's Best Tasting Tap Water will be decided in New Plymouth on May 16 and the winner will go on to duke it out against Fern Tree the same day.

"Many of us turn on taps for a drink, to cook and to shower, with little thought as to the complexities involved in operating and maintaining the water infrastructure," said WIOG Chair Joshua McIndoe.

"The competition acknowledges the individuals and organisations that are stepping up to make sure their communities are supplied with safe drinking water every day."

Wellbeing at its core

Wheelhouse is the first self-directed learning (SDL) centre in Tasmania, and only the second in the country.

Sharing the philosophy of well-established SDL centres around the world, Wheelhouse offers a truly tailored education to their teen members.

"It's very different to school," said co-founder Melissa Storey.

"While learning is the common denominator, at Wheelhouse mental health is our core focus.

"Learning naturally follows.

"When young people are happy and relaxed, it is much easier to feel curious about the world, develop skills and retain information."

Wheelhouse members 'take the wheel' at the centre, and lead with their strengths and interests.

For some, this might be racing ahead academically, for others, the focus might be creativity or being physically active.

Members choose to participate in traditional subjects, but they also delve into 'out of the box' subjects - many of which are created in response to their requests.

Other co-founder, Marion Thomas stated "We are more like an expansive library than a school".

"Our members can tap into our resources, activities, excursions and nurturing community as they wish.

"We also support them to connect with the wider world.

"It's about getting out and living their lives now, instead of waiting until they are adults."

This year What Matters entries from Margate students included: the importance of small business in communities, gender equity in sport, family breakdown, friendship, homelessness, poverty, AFL stadium in Hobart, animal welfare and looking after the environment.

Prepare your advanced care

May 20-26 is Law Week and the Public Trustee, Office of the Public Guardian and Palliative Care Tasmania are urging Tasmanians to take action to make your financial, medical and legal wishes known.

Public Trustee CEO Todd Kennedy stated that Law Week was an important opportunity to continue the conversation with the community about planning for the future.

"Unfortunately, half of all Tasmanians pass away without a will, which can have a significant impact on those left behind," he said.

An estate plan typically includes an enduring power of attorney (to make financial decisions), an enduring guardianship (to make medical or personal decisions), an advanced care directive (to provide detailed care instructions to your health care providers) and a will to distribute your estate when you pass away.

These are separate documents, each covering a distinct and important aspect of your care and estate.

"Having a will and estate plan is like having a road map for providing protection and support for yourself and your loved ones if something ever happens to you," Mr Kennedy said.

"If you do not have estate planning documents, the Tasmanian Civil and Administration Tribunal (TASCAT) may need to appoint someone to help you make medical or financial decisions if you lose decision-making capacity due to an accident or illness.

"TASCAT can appoint a loved one to support you.

"If there is no one willing or able to assist you or where there are conflicts of interest, the Public Trustee can be appointed to support financial decision-making or the Public Guardian to support medical or personal decision-making.

"If you pass away without a will, your deceased estate will be distributed according to the Tasmanian Intestacy Act 2010.

The Public Trustee is hosting a range of seminars across the state for Law Week to provide clear instructions on managing your legal, medical and financial affairs. There will be a free information session held in Hobart on May 22 at Rydges Hotel, North Hobart to discuss estate and advance care planning. (P5)

"Your loved ones may need to apply to the Supreme Court of Tasmania for a grant of Letters of Administration to distribute the estate.

"This can be a difficult process to coordinate and may not necessarily reflect your wishes.

"It can also cause additional emotional and financial distress for your family and loved ones during an already challenging time.

"As part of the Law Week program, we will be hosting free seminars around the state, discussing how important it is to make a will, estate and advance care plan to provide clear instructions to manage your legal, medical and financial affairs.

"The free information session will be held in Hobart on May 22 at Rydges Hotel, North Hobart to discuss estate and advance care planning and answer questions.

"Don't forget to book via the Public Trustee website.

"If people can't make one of the sessions they can always call us to make an appointment to discuss getting their ducks in a row and how we can help them plan for their future.

"Alternatively, there is a presentation online on our website."

The Public Trustee can prepare both a will and enduring power of attorney documents from $140 for a single person or $210 for a couple and if you are a pensioner or senior's cardholder, they can prepare these documents for free if the Public Trustee is appointed as executor or attorney.

The Public Trustee can also prepare enduring guardianship documents from $140 for a single person or $210 for a couple.

You can prepare your advanced care directive by downloading the form.

It is best to chat with your doctor and family about your preferences.

For more information, please visit www.publictrustee.tas.gov.au or call 1800 068 784.

Have you got all your ducks in a row?

Estate and Advance Care Planning

This Law Week, join us to learn how to take proactive steps to ensure your financial, legal and healthcare wishes are secure. We will focus on important documents such as a Will, Enduring Power of Attorney, Advance Care Directive and Enduring Guardianship.

Wednesday 22 May, 10 - 11:30am at Rydges North Hobart, 393 Argyle Street
