

Relaunch of Fishy Sixty

The Fishy Sixty was restored and relaunched on Sunday, January 14 in memory of late Blackmans Bay Scout leader Aaron Frith.

The sailing dinghy was donated by Aaron's family to the Scout group.

The boat's name Fishy Sixty comes from Aaron's two nicknames.

His scouting name was Fishy, and his close mates jokingly called him Sixty after a few incidents involving 60 series Land Cruisers.

Unfortunately, the craft had been sorely neglected and required a significant effort to restore.

A Venture unit, and one Venturer in particular, Nick, took up this challenge.

With many hours of input and guidance from the group's jack-of-all-trades handyman Michael, the pair finally completed the project towards the end of last year.

On Sunday, January 14, a relaunch of the vessel was held at Drum Point boat ramp.

In attendance were many of Aaron's family and friends including his parents and two daughters.

Group leader Brian started proceedings with a speech, then the Venturers followed by reciting a traditional ship's blessing and a toast to the new boat.

Aaron's mum Jackie gave a tearful monologue.

It was then time to get the boat in the water.

Once the sail was hoisted she took off beautifully, and a few of the Venturers sailed her around the Channel.

The group are looking forward to testing out her skills at the upcoming Scout Guide Regatta in March.

The Fishy Sixty was relaunched on January 14 by Venturer Nick, who led the restoration work on the boat donated to the Blackmans Bay Scouts in memory of Scout leader Aaron Frith after his sad passing. Also in attendance were Aaron's daughters Charlotte and Brooke, Aaron's mum Jackie and her husband Peter. (PS)

Brookfield café bows out

Owner Julia Ridgers has made the tough call to close the café side of Margate's Brookfield Shed.

"The decision to close the café has been a hard one as it has become my lifestyle," Julia said.

"But I do believe that times are getting harder, and I wanted to be proactive so it wouldn't become a situation of debt.

"As my other business are so successful, I decided to concentrate my time on them."

Julia devotes much of her time assisting Kingborough Helping Hands and the Lions Club of Kingborough, with Julia being recognised for her community spirit with a Certificate of Appreciation in the 2022 Kingborough Community Awards.

"I will still reside at Brookfield part-time and continue the vegetable gardens and farm," Julia said.

"I would like to lease out the café space, but I am in no hurry.

"Brookfield Shed has been my business and home for the past seven years and it's time to take a break for a while as it will always be a part of my future."

The café will be closed from Thursday, January 25.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bad idea implemented badly

Dear Editor,

Like Ian Batchelor, Kingborough Chronicle, January 16, I dislike the current generation of self-serve checkouts.

The implementation is abysmal - an example of a bad idea implemented badly.

Usually, a human is available to help, but the system is obviously a prototype that needs a lot more work.

The computer inside continually confuses itself when I put my bag in the packing bay and becomes even more confused when I put groceries into that bag, even though a little friendly voice has just told me to do that.

Its timing settings seem to need calibrated humans that always move at the expected speed.

If I move too promptly, it grizzles; if I move a little slower, it grizzles.

And don't get me started on what happens when I fill one bag and try to fill another.

Oh.

I shop at Woolworths, not Coles.

Keith Anderson
Kingston

Generally just a big con

Dear Editor,

With reference to the front page of the Kingborough Chronicle, January 9.

I have written to Coles management trying to make them aware of the necessity of an express lane in the Kingston store and the simplicity of achieving said lane.

Needless to say, I have heard nothing back, although I expressly asked for a reply.

When expressing my views to staff, the checkout staff tend to agree, but management just doesn't seem to get it.

I was more or less told, 'It's not going to happen'.

The previous express lane was hardly express because the staff member was also responsible for cigarette sales and general enquiries, but it was better than being queued up behind overflowing trolleys when one only had a small number of items.

There are often many shoppers in this situation with just a few items, looking for the quickest way out.

I refuse to use the self-serve section, as do many others.

On most of the recent occasions when I have been shopping in Coles I note there are four checkout lanes still in existence, but of those only one or two are staffed, even at quite busy times.

How simple would it be to have them all running?

They could even hang a sign on one of them stating it is an express lane for 12 items or less.

There are always plenty of staff hanging about in the self-serve section to help customers there.

Maybe if they took those staff to run the other two registers, they might find that more customers are genuinely satisfied.

They might also find many others really don't like self-serve, because they don't know what they are doing without help and would be quite happy to go back to a checkout with a staff member (who can scan and pack much quicker than you can anyway) and is always ready with a smile and a quick chat.

All you have to do is tap your card, pick up your bags and go.

The whole self-serve bit might suit a few people but generally is just a big con.

Finally, something is underway

Dear Editor,

In response to an article in the Kingborough Chronicle dated January 9.

Congratulations to Lions and Terry White Pharmacy for their initiative in the recycling of medication blister packs.

As with recycling of other products, this service has been available in other states for some time.

Tasmania seems to be behind in so many ways but finally, something is underway.

Let's hope the community appreciates and supports this.

If not, yet another project will be lost due to apathy

New CEO for Kingborough Council

Kingborough Mayor Paula Wriedt recently announced the appointment of Dave Stewart to the new Chief Executive Officer (CEO) role at Kingborough Council.

Cr Wriedt said she was excited to welcome Kingborough's new CEO to the municipality and looked forward to him sharing his extensive experience with the community.

Mr Stewart currently lives in New Zealand as General Manager, Active Communities in Auckland Council.

He and his wife will be moving to Tasmania in early April 2024 to take up the position at Kingborough Council.

Dave Stewart said he was looking forward to the opportunity to be the new Council CEO in one of the most beautiful, diverse and fastest-growing municipalities in Tasmania.

"I am looking forward to getting out and about to meet as many community organisations and members as I can," Mr Stewart said.

"I want to ensure that our staff teams have the resources to do their job effectively and to support their professional goals, aspirations and growth whilst working towards providing the very best service levels to our community.

"I also want to hear how Kingborough Council can improve services and processes to build a better council for our community in partnership with our dedicated Mayor and Councillor team.

"On a personal level, I am really looking forward to living in a smaller, close-knit community and am hoping to ideally purchase some land where my family can live a more sustainable lifestyle."

Mr Stewart comes with impressive multi-sector experience having previously worked for Paralympics New Zealand, Australian Rugby and the Australian Rugby Foundation.

"Whilst going through this process, Council made the timely decision to rename the role of General Manager to Chief Executive Officer," Cr Wriedt said.

Disability Inclusion Committee calls for nominations

Kingborough Council's Disability Inclusion and Access Advisory Committee is looking for new members to be part of this important group that provides advice and assistance to Kingborough Council on disability access and inclusiveness.

The committee meets once every two months and is made up of individuals who have lived experience of disability or who work for organisations that provide services to people with disability.

The committee works to promote the rights of people with a disability to contribute to and fully take part in public life by identifying obstacles and ways to address them.

Chair of the Disability Inclusion and Access Advisory Committee Kingborough Mayor Paula Wriedt said the committee would love to hear from people who feel they want to help make a difference concerning the rights and contributions of people with a disability.

"Accessibility isn't just about meeting minimum standards; it's about creating spaces that are inclusive and welcoming to the diversity of individuals that make up our community," Cr Wriedt said.

"The committee has been very active in the past few years with many initiatives, including the accessible beach matting at Kingston Beach and the Changing Places facility at the Community Hub."

The committee advise Kingborough Council on infrastructure around the municipality that can be upgraded to enable greater accessibility.

If you have lived experience of disability, are caring for someone with disability and/or work or volunteer for a service provider in the Kingborough area, you are invited to nominate to become part of the committee.

State Labor leader and Shadow Minister for Infrastructure Rebecca White and Member for Franklin Dean Winter recently said that every Hobart commuter needs to understand that delays to outbound traffic on both the Southern Outlet and Tasman Bridge because of the Southern Outlet Transit Lane construction project will impact them. They said that documents obtained under Right to Information (RTI) by Labor indicated significant impacts on traffic during construction, a significant risk of rockfall during construction and a 'significant shortfall' in funding for the project. Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Michael Ferguson said that the Southern Outlet Transit Lane is about incentivising public transport as part of a comprehensive plan to bust congestion and that, "Dean Winter's claim that this important upgrade would provide 'no benefit' is factually incorrect". ## Keep useful items from landfill Kingborough Community Hub will host the next Really Really Free Market on Saturday, February 24, between 12pm and 1pm.

The market is held four times a year, so there will be other opportunities if you are not quite ready yet.

Anyone wanting to book a table to help with a post-Christmas cleanout can do so on the Kingborough Council website.

Kingborough Mayor Paula Wriedt said it's a great time of year to go through your stuff and find it a new home.

"People with items to give away are happy to lighten their load, while others are thrilled to walk away with a treasure for free," Cr Wriedt said.

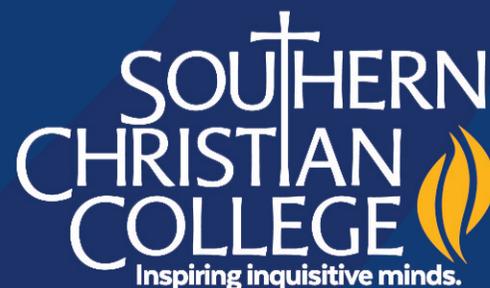

"The Really Really Free Market aims to stop things going into landfill and to provide a way for items to be reused and recycled."

Local Indigenous artist Bronwyn (Bron) Englert recently designed a new art installation for the Kettering Ferry Terminal ticket booth. South East Tasmanian Aboriginal Corporation (SETAC) CEO Jaime Currie, SETAC Executive Officer Deb Cowen, artist Bron Englert, SeaLink Bruny Island General Manager Simon Tamlyn and local Aboriginal Elder Rodney Dillon. (PS)

Kettering Terminal art unveiled

The SeaLink ticket booth at Kettering Ferry Terminal unveiled a new Aboriginal art installation recently.

Bronwyn Englert, a local Tasmanian contemporary Aboriginal artist, spent 27 hours creating the original painting that was then replicated by a digital printer.

The artwork features intricate elements representing profound significance to the region, including Parrabah (meaning whale and SeaLink's vessel's name), places of cultural significance and fairy penguins at Bruny Island's neck.

General Manager Simon Tamlyn said SeaLink approached the South East Tasmania Aboriginal Corporation, with whom they have had a working relationship since SeaLink took over the operation in late 2018.

"I was looking for a local artist that we could collaborate with to really tell the story of Bruny Island from a First Nation's perspective," Tamlyn said.

"The brief was to bring to life all the wonderful history of First Nation peoples' ties to the island whilst adding colour and vibrancy to the improved facilities at the Kettering terminal.

"We gave Bron free rein to come up with a concept and fair to say she did an amazing job."

Funding to watch the waste

Kingborough Waste Services, which operates the Baretta Waste Transfer Station, has received a $15,360 grant to upgrade the landfill levy software.

The total cost of the project is $19,200.

The Waste Data Readiness Grant Program provided the 11 successful applicants with a share of $290,000 to improve their ability to classify material and to be able to report on the amount of each material type, in compliance with the Waste and Resource Recovery Act 2022.

The grant program was made available through the Circular Economy Fund, to assist smaller resource recovery operators with the cost of modifying business systems and infrastructure to support a better understanding of waste streams state-wide.

This is a community event so whether you want to set the swimming course record or bring the kids along and walk in the shallows, you will have a great day.

Changes to antique firearm management

A new process for the management of antique (pre-1900) firearms has been implemented in Tasmania.

The change came into effect on January 18 and means that licensing, registration and storage requirements now apply to antique firearms that may previously have been exempt from these conditions.

Assistant Commissioner of Police Rob Blackwood said that the changes were aimed at improving community safety, and owners of antique firearms will be given time to consider their new licensing and registration requirements.

If you own antique firearms, it's important to understand what this means for you.

What has changed?

Before January 18, Exemption No. 4 under the Firearms Act 1996 allowed people to possess certain antique (pre-1900) firearms without a licence or the need to meet registration or storage requirements.

Exemption No. 4 has now been cancelled and anyone who owns an antique firearm must take steps to ensure compliance.

What do I need to do?

There are four options to ensure your antique firearms are compliant.

You must act now:

- Apply for a time limited individual exemption (to continue to possess these firearms in compliant firearms storage for a limited time whilst applying for a suitable firearms licence and registration),
- Apply for a firearms licence or a licence upgrade now (however, this will require the surrender of the firearms to a licenced dealer during the process),
- Sell the firearm through a licenced firearms dealer; or

- Surrender the firearm to police for destruction (Tasmania has an ongoing firearms amnesty).

Assistant Commissioner of Police Robert Blackwood said that the previous exclusion of pre-1900 firearms was not consistent with the intent of the Firearms Act 1996, or with the expectations of the Tasmanian community concerning checks and controls such as licensing and storage that apply to other types of firearms.

"The new process to possess antique (pre-1900) firearms will further help to protect our community by ensuring that proper processes are in place regarding the possession and storage of antique firearms," Assistant Commissioner Blackwood said.

"Importantly, it allows for fit and proper person assessments to be undertaken, which previously was not done in relation to antique firearms.

"We understand this is a change in practise that will impact the owners of antique firearms.

"The opportunity to apply for a time limited individual exemption gives owners time to consider their options to either keep, sell or dispose of the firearms.

"We'll be continuing to liaise with key stakeholder groups including firearms clubs and historical societies, firearms representative groups and firearms dealers to ensure affected parties are supported through these changes," said the Assistant Commissioner.

Members of the public can contact the Antique Firearms Transition Project team for advice about their specific circumstances by emailing antique.firearms.transition@police.tas.gov.au or calling (03) 6173 2225.

Longley learning centre bridging gaps

When Mel Storey and Marion Thomas opened Wheelhouse Tas Inc last year as a self-directed learning centre for teenagers, they were excited about the benefits of allowing young people autonomy and the chance to follow their interests and strengths.

They were also glad that teens would have the chance to connect, not only with one another, but with mentors of all ages.

"Many of us are aware there's a disconnection between generations in Australia, particularly when it comes to teens and the elderly," Marion said.

"Yet there's something magical about seeing friendships form between people who are decades apart. It decreases fear and boosts empathy."

The mentors who have shared their knowledge at Wheelhouse so far have been between the ages of 20 and 80.

Wheelhouse is currently expanding their database of volunteer mentors.

"Our volunteers simply need a WWVP card, an interest or skill they would like to share, and a willingness to be kind and respectful to everyone in the Wheelhouse community regardless of age," Mel and Marion said.

Mel and Marion can be contacted by emailing info@wheelhouse.life.

Fish more, stress less

Most people buy their boats for recreational use and no one wants it to be a stressful and unhappy experience.

Sometimes it all comes down to the right gear to make everything easier.

When your boat is in tip-top condition you don't have to stress, you just fish and enjoy.

RL Welding custom builds a host of stainless steel products for your boats and stocks a great range of other quality marine products.

The RL Welding workshop in Huntingfield manufactures products that are shipped all over Australia and New Zealand.

This is an email they received in January 2023 from a customer in Western Australia regarding their stainless steel pot hauler.

"I live in Dongara, Western Australia where there is heaps of crayfish and just makes pulling pots a dream.

"Finish is amazing and doesn't affect boat stability at rest at all, well done."

The pride in their products is replicated in the pride of the workshop, their manner and ensuring that the customer leaves RL Welding delighted.

Busy sailing season

Kingston Beach Sailing Club (KBSC) has been busy this season, competing in a number of national championships.

The 60th Sabot Australian National Titles were held in Hervey Bay, Queensland recently, with KBSC sailors Wellington Adams, Atlas Miller and Arthur Adams representing.

Arthur finished second in race 3 but suffered some setbacks due to gear breakage, winding up 14th out of 52 on Holy Guacamole.

Atlas was close behind, coming 18th on Bluejuice.

He had better luck in the Australian O'pen Skiff Championships held at Lake Cootharaba Sailing Club, Queensland.

Atlas came away in a very respectable second place in this championship.

Wellington finished 22nd on Chitty Chat in the National Titles.

Pictured right, some sailors from Kingston Beach Sailing Club recently competed in the 60th Sabot Australian National Titles in Hervey Bay, Queensland. (PS)

Before it stopped the Sharks made 5-99 with some interesting action. There was a loss of upper order batsmen for low scores, but Damien Minehan was on fire, making 36 runs from 18 balls with no fours but five sixes.
